Activity Introduction and Record:

Ink painting is a representative form of Chinese painting. In the classroom, children learned the techniques of ink painting, and knew how to use a brush to draw simple lines, such as houses, fruits, flowers, etc. They then used traditional Chinese painting colours to add colour to their works, creating unique paintings. This activity gave the children their first experience with brush and ink, allowing them to experience the joy of ink painting and appreciate the beauty of Chinese traditional painting.
